April 26, 2012

Since my time with Monsanto colored lights, I have only done 2 things: 1) spent about 21 years with HP and 2) 12 years in retirement.

I left Monsanto shortly before the sale to GI. I then spent most of my time at HP doing what I did at Monsanto, namely, as an engineer in the optoelectronics division. I worked in manufacturing, marketing, and product development.

My retirement years have been spent traveling and working in my woodshop. I also spend time with my family, which includes grandchildren and great grandchildren. My woodworking mainly is to make toys, furniture and other items for family and friends.

My wife, Marilyn and I have traveled a lot. We have been to every continent except Antarctica. We mostly do cruises these days. We have been on 13 cruises, to date, for a total of 27 weeks at sea.

Retirement is the best part of my life, so far. I never wake up wishing I were going to work!
