

RAY BROWN

April 19, 2012

When Monsanto shut down, I went to work at Fairchild in the LED group. This group was soon shut down. They were mostly interested in the LED/LCD watch business.

Since the watch business was not profitable, it was soon shut down. Fairchild/ Schlumberger was having profit problems in all their divisions. I became an independent "Consultant"

I worked for Molex on a plastic fiber/LED interface package and a special Silicon circuit made by Exar.

I retired on Jan 1st 1990. I had a wood working shop in half of our garage and made specialized furniture, toys and other things. This was the most fun I have had other than flying my small air planes. We now live in a CCRC community in Los Gatos called "The Terraces".

Ray Brown