RICHARD LAMB

February 2, 2012

I transferred to the Silicon Business and sold Silicon for Monsanto until 1979.

Then, I started a company, to distribute Silicon wafers, called Aurel. Was quite successful up until 1989 when it went bankrupt. It tried to expand into manufacturing with insufficient technical capital. This caused it to use all its real capital.

In 1979 I started a company called International Wafer Service (IWS). IWS distributes Silicon throughout the world. It also has the technical capital to assist start-up companies designing Si-based processes and supplies non-conventional Silicon. This company is still operating. I retired from it in 2005.

In 1988 I married my wife Carol Meacham. We now live on 5-½ acres in Volcano, CA. If interested, it is in Amador County off of pass road US 88. My avocation is woodworking, and I have been lucky enough to have assembled in my barn a wood shop. It pleases me to make various things for ourselves, my 4 children and my 8 grandchildren.

If you do the math, my age is 78. To help stave off Alzheimers I study German. I have gotten so far as to be able to read children books. Ich spreche ein etwas kinderdeustch. Meaning "I speak a somewhat childrens' German."

That's my story and I'm sticking with it!

Richard Lamb